

Job ID: #JOB 43/2020

Job Description

Job Title: assistant in theoretical biophysics

Job Summary:

Molecular dynamics of proteins, especially intrinsically disordered, and of their aggregation

Job Description:

The work involves using molecular dynamics and other numerical techniques to study properties of biomolecules, their complexes and aggregates. One of the subjects of interest in the laboratory is intrinsically disordered proteins, especially in the context of the neurodegenerative diseases. Oftentimes the solutions of these proteins undergo liquid-liquid phase transitions that result in the formations of the proteinaceous droplets. The droplets act as membrane-less organelles that provide a more concentrated environment to perform various biological functions. The Laboratory performs studies on how to make use of such droplets, for instance in fish aquaculture to capture toxins that plague breeding of salmon and other species and without using antibiotics. The modelling will be based both on all-atom and coarse-grained simulations. The latter will be based on the available in-house programs.
