Job Description

Job Title: Postdoc in Computational Soft Matter and Fluids Physics

Job Summary:

Droplet dynamics phenomena, such as droplet coalescence, break-up, and impact are ubiquitous and play an important role in many industrial areas (e.g. 3D printing). The planned research tasks in the frame of a Sonata Bis project will involve multiscale computer simulation methods to investigate topological changes of droplets laden with various additives, which will allow for a greater control of droplet dynamics towards optimizing technological processes. The project will be carried out in the Soft Matter and Fluids Physics Group (ON5.5, <https://sites.google.com/view/theodorakisgroup/home>) in close collaboration with experiment and will also have direct implications in the design of soft metamaterials.

Job Description:

The researcher will be involved in the research tasks of the above topic and will work closely with other researchers of the Sonata Bis project headed by dr hab. Panagiotis Theodorakis and experimental groups. They will also have further opportunity to interact with European consortia and take advantage of associated training opportunities.

Main research field: Physics

Sub Research Field: Computational Soft Matter and Fluids Physics

Career Stage: Experienced researcher or 4 – 10 years (Post-Doc)

Research Profile: Recognised researcher (R2)

Type of Contract: Temporary (initially for 12 months with possible extension for another 11 months)

Status: Full-time

Salary: Approximately 8300 PLN per month (before ~ 30% taxes, exact amount depends slightly on applicable social security contributions).
